

Chinese Calligraphy & Inscription

4268 significant, classical pieces of calligraphy/inscriptions

700 calligraphers 1.7 million characters

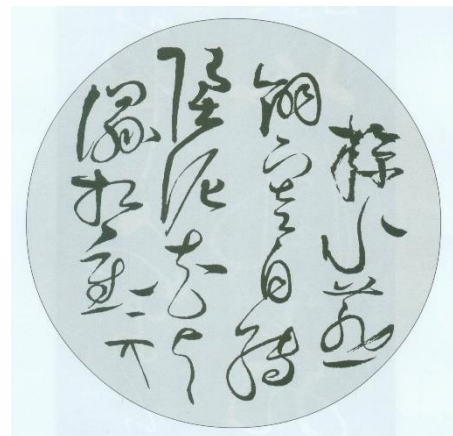

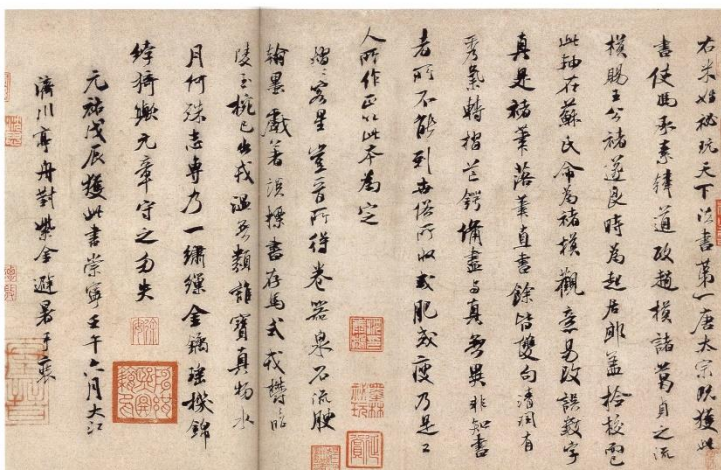

Single-character photos, full-work images, full-text search engine

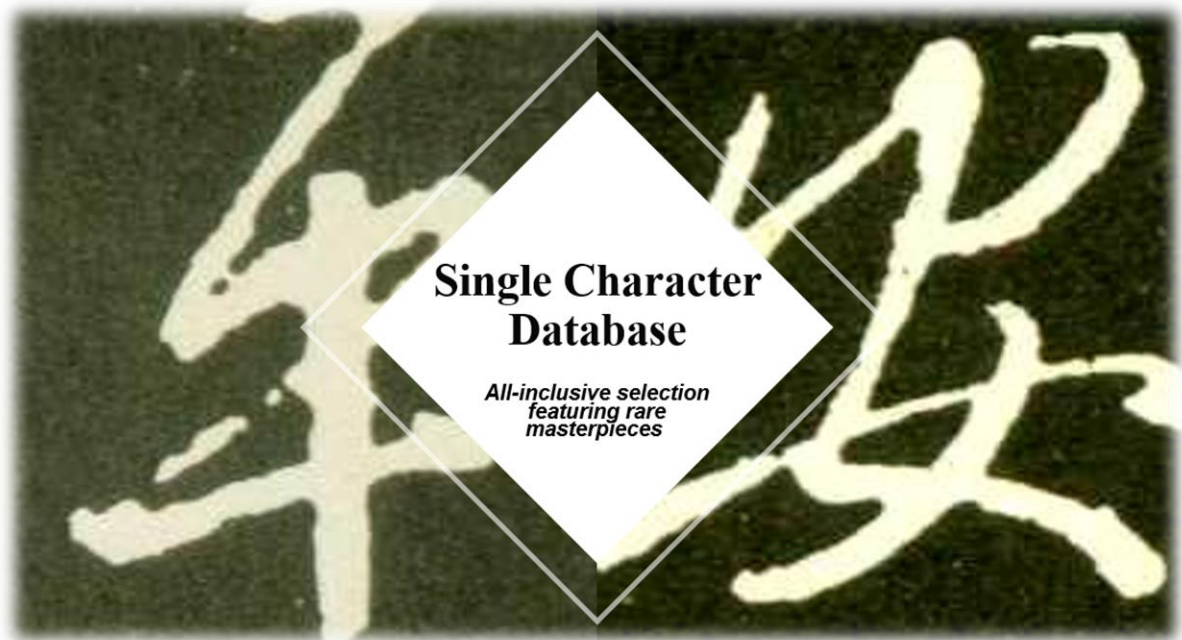

There are 2 sub-databases within the collection : the “Full Work Database” and the “Single Character Database”. Both of them are built by Unicode, therefore the variant Chinese characters are able to be found in the platform. This collection features its high search efficiency on ancient characters, which can be widely applied to philology studies, education, appreciation and daily practice.

Full Work Database : Enjoy the configuration of the whole piece

In the “Full Work Database,” users can promptly find different calligraphers’ works from different dynasties, compare their styles, and enjoy the glamorous Chinese characters via search engine. It’s convenient for users to apply these character files to their own works, such as: name card, signboard, advertisement design, while blending Chinese art into their daily lives.

Single Character Database

All-inclusive selection featuring rare
masterpieces

The other is the “Single Character Database,” in which every character reserves its original look, charm and feeling. Based on the 《Calligraphy Dictionary》 published in 1963 in Japan, this sub-database mainly contains the works in Regular script, Cursive script and Semi-cursive script ; while some great works in Clerical script and Seal script are also selected in the collection. Furthermore, it features some masterpieces in Clerical script of Han Dynasty and in Cursive script of Jin Dynasty which are hard to find in other databases of it kind. The comprehensive compilation makes the whole collection much higher value either for artistic appreciation, media applications or research purposes.
